Dolph is a firm believer in woman suffrage.

The opening day of the Spring meeting of the Blood Horse Association has been postponed until Tuesday, April 6th, on account of the unsafe condition of the track.

The canvass of the House Banking and Currency Committee develops the fact that the majority are in favor of issuing silver certificates of denominations of $1, $2 and $5.

The Oregon State election will take place June 7th. A Congressman will also be elected at that time. The Republican plurality two years ago was a little more than 2,000.

Congressman Lawler, of Illinois, declared in the House yesterday that if Jay Gould was hung to a lamp post in New York it would be a blessing to the community known as the United States.

Senator Fair, who visited a shipyard on the Delaware a short time ago, it is reported with the intention of building a steam yacht, writes to a gentleman in New York that he "does not intend to either build or charter a yacht at the present time."

Since Utah has been an organized Territory, the Governors, Secretaries, Judges, District Attorneys, Marshals, Registers and Receivers of the Land Office, and Surveyors-General, have numbered something over one hundred, and just six of them have been bona fide residents of the Territory.

The Alta correctly states that it will not be pleasant to read some morning that the President has been thrown by overwork, and it is a fact that no man can stand the intensity of occupation he has followed up to this time. The country will be glad to hear that he has unbent, cast labor and care aside, and enjoyed some recreation.

The World's Washington special says: Assistant Secretary Jenks, of the Interior Department, is looking specially after the Pacific railroads. He has found a great many cases of criminal violations of law upon the part of officials of the railroads, but in the majority of instances these violations are of such date that the statute of limitation forbids any prosecution. Jenks said yesterday to a caller that he was anxious to get hold of one well-authenticated case not protected by the statute of limitations. He thought if one or two officials of these roads could be sent to the penitentiary it would have a very wholesome effect.

The appointment of Caleb Breckenridge, of Louisville, Ky., to the Surveyor Generalship of Washington Territory excites great indignation among the few people of that Territory who are in Washington. Delegate Voorhees says it is indefensible and an outrage, and that it is in direct violation of the national platform, which stated that offices in the Territories should be filled by citizens of the Territories. Speaker Carlisle some time ago brought Breckenridge forward as a candidate. Carlisle has a Kentuckian for every important office in the West which the President can, with any propriety, fill with an outsider.

A month ago Senator Ingalls made his attack in the Senate on Assistant Attorney General Zach Montgomery, and not a word has been said in regard to Montgomery's confirmation since. It is said, however, that he is certain to be confirmed when his name is reached. So far as can be learned, there is no objection to Montgomery among the Democrats of the Senate, and they will be re-enforced by Senator Jones, of Nevada, Senator Mitchell, of Oregon, and Senator Van Wyck, and probably others. It is asserted on good authority that Ingalls and Edmunds are aware of the fact, and for this reason have neglected to bring Montgomery's case up for confirmation.

There was a meeting of the Presidents of the Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Atchafson, Topoka and Santa Fe railroads at the residence of C. P. Huntington Friday. Huntington, when asked about it, said: "We talked over the situation in a friendly way, and several points which have not been well understood were explained. I do not like to say that we came to an understanding, or that a settlement is sure, because so many things might occur 'that would upset the plans, but I think if safe to say there will probably be a settlement within thirty days. I thought we were near a settlement when we had our last meeting, but certain things came into discussion which prevented it."

Indignant Indiana Democrats.

A delegation of Indiana Democrats called on the President a few days ago to urge the appointment of Mr. Stoll as Public Printer in place of Mr. Rounds. They were emphatic in expressing their fears of Democratic defeat in Indiana unless the President made this and other contributions to the needs of the party there. The President, however, manifested the utmost indifference, and said he did not propose to remove Mr. Rounds, and that if the success of the party in Indiana depended on Presidential interference defeat would be a good and proper thing for it. The delegation withdrew in great indignation, prophesying that the Republicans would carry Indiana next Autumn.

The Committee of Ways and Means is said to be still traveling with Mr. Morrison's tariff bill. Grave alterations have been made in it, but still it is not so perfected as to be reported to the House. But not a few correspondents predict that any measure which will satisfy the Illinois representative will be likely to be distasteful to the House. There are not a few Protection Democrats who are content with the present tariff. The additions which Col. Morrison would make to the free list would endanger local industries wherein many Democrats are interested, and they will join, it is said, with Republicans, in struggling the expected bill. Some correspondents prophesy that a motion to strike out the enacting clause of the new bill would be so popular with both Republicans and a large wing of the Democrats that its fate would soon be sealed. If it should escape so ignominious a doom, however, it can hardly go through the Senate; and we think that manufacturers have far less reason to fear adverse legislation than the strikes which have been becoming so inconvenient.

The Spanish Minister has attempted to take a hand in the matter of Federal appointments. It is learned that when the President appointed Dr. Harris as Collector of the Port at Key West, the Spanish Minister went to Secretary Bayard and entered a vigorous protest on the ground, as he alleged, that Harris was a sympathizer of the Cuban patriots. Bayard replied that he had nothing to do with the matter, and that it concerned only the President and the Treasury Department. Then the honorable diplomat hopped into his carriage and went to Acting Secretary Fairchild. It is understood that he was there told in terms plain and unmistakable that there must be no interference on the part of representatives of foreign powers in the matter of Federal appointments, and that the President's action for the good of the community would not be rescinded because the appointment happened to be an object of suspicion on the part of the Spanish Government.

Serious charges have been made of collusion and fraud between Commissioner Black and the Civil Service Commissioners. The allegations are that Black appointed twenty-two Democrats as examiners in the Pension Office out of seventy-seven that he called for; that he obtained the whole list of eligibles, but that he selected his party friends; that he called candidates to Washington who had been recommended by Congressmen and party bosses, and had special examinations for them, in which the percentage was reduced from 65 to 60. Therefore, it is declared that the Commission has made the law a delusion and a sham, so far as its operations in the Pension Office are concerned.

"J. B. P." in S. F. Rural Press.

Whilst Nevada, in a most conspicuous sense, is a mineral country, it presents an outlook to the agriculturist, full of the deepest interest and attraction. Whilst this statement, to a distant observer, might appear almost extravagant, it will admit of a complete verification, we believe, on a closer inspection. The numerous valleys, some of which are broad and sweeping, extending for a distance of more than two hundred miles along the eastern slope of the Sierra Nevada, and occasionally far on into the interior, offer bright contrasts to the naked and lofty mountains which crop out all over the State. Time, patience, mechanical and agricultural industry have wrought marvelous changes upon the face of these once unpeopled deserts.

It has been the writer's experience during the past few months, to visit and traverse quite a number of these now well peopled and well cultivated districts of country, to share in the hospitality of its enterprising and noble citizens, and to gather a small bundle of statistics that may be of some possible use to your readers.

Whilst it may not be possible to establish soon a Citrus Fair among the hills of Nevada, it has often been said in our hearing by parties of the highest intelligence, that the exhibit last year, at Reno, in the horticultural and pomological departments of the State Fair, was a matter of astonishment and wonder to many of those who visited it.

Indeed, these statements are only confirmatory of what we had the most abundant demonstration, from time to time, of the resources and possibilities of the State, in these respects, when these interests should be brought to a higher state of perfection, by some additional years of careful culture. In truth, one of the rarest spectacles witnessed in life, was the pomological display we found in the Salt Lake and Utah valleys, twenty three years ago the coming August, in a latitude and elevation almost exactly similar to that of Nevada.

The rich and luscious yield of the peach crop, especially in that then remote desert land, was amply sufficient to intoxicate the senses of any weary pilgrim just from off the dusty plains. In the absorption of nearly all interests in the mining department, as Virginia, Reese River, Paradise, Tuscarora, Eureka, and the many other camps which have sprung into notice in succession during the past twenty-five years, it was scarcely to be expected that agriculture would have taken a prominent position among the industries of this State. But, as in California, when a lull came over this most monopolizing industry, a diversion took place in the direction of the field, the farm, and the stock yard, and the past dozen years have witnessed a great and radical improvement in the grauer's department. This course of things has brought about its natural results—better breeds of stock, more extensive and expensive water ditches, more convenient and ample farm buildings, a resolute attention to tree growth and fruit orchards, and as a consequence choicer and more domesticated homesteads.

IRRIGATION.

The three principal rivers that flow eastward from the Sierra Nevada range, and whose waters are mainly derived from the snows of this range, are the Truckee, the Carson and the Walker, and their wealth of waters may be regarded of first importance to the western portion of the State. Irrigation here, as in Southern California, is of primary consideration to all agricultural and horticultural interests. These three rivers are utilized to the greatest advantage by large irrigating ditches that branch from the parent streams and convey the necessary fluid over widely extended mesas and around vast stretches of meadow and farm lands. These ditches tap the rivers soon after leaving the mountains, and with slight variations continue their office work for a hundred miles or more for each of the above mentioned rivers.

LIVE STOCK.

What struck our attention first in Carson City, the capital, was the presence of a large amount of very choice stock, especially horses, and that which, on inquiry, was found to be raised mainly in the country. It might be said, parenthetically that the last impression was of a similar kind, when, after spending two months in this part of the State, we were invited by Mr. E. Williams, Superintendent of the Mexican Mill, and President of Carson City bank, to accompany him in his buggy to the Capitol, from his home in Empire City, a distance of four miles. We have never been tobogganing, but the lightning speed of that gentle-blooded, noble beast, which took us over that level, air-kissed road, strangely reminded us of that rare sport. It was certainly one of the choicest animals ever included in a harness.

The State as a whole, so far as we have been able to learn, is one of the finest in the West, not only as to raising horses, but cattle and stock of all kinds. We noticed this, in particular, as we passed up through Carson Valley, thence through Antelope, Smith and Mason

Valleys. Some of the rarest-blooded horned stock is to be found in Smith Valley and in Mason Valley; the raising of fine horses appears to have been made a specialty. Mr. Nicoll's herd is specially marked, as to its high order of excellence, and is widely known all over Nevada. On Mr. G. B. Holcomb's farm, six miles south of Reno, in Truckee Valley, we had the pleasure of seeing one of the noble Clydesdales, a work horse, running as high as 1,800 in weight. He has some other very fine stock on his most thoroughly managed and well-kept ranch. There appears to be very little complaint among ranchers as to fatal disorders among stock of this kind, losses occurring mainly from mismanagement, overwork, or some gross ignorance of the nature and treatment of this class of stock. What has been here stated of horses is equally applicable to horned stock. The stock of this class is being rapidly improved from time to time. We have observed some very fine Shorthorns, Devonshires, Jerseys and Holsteins in almost every valley. Farmers here seem to have a well-rooted conviction to take hold and tune up the grade of their herds by introducing good blood, and hence their deep interest in the Rural Press, when it contains some choice illustrations and articles on live stock.

THE FEED.

But horses and cattle that live and thrive must not only have good climate and water, but, most of all, good feed. It is presumed that an elevation of some 4,500 feet above sea level, as the lowest valleys and sinks of Nevada appear to be, would leave a general impression for good, or evil, upon animal life. The effect is manifestly favorable to both man and beast. The solidifying effect of mountain climate which is here the normal one the year round is readily seen. This gives compactness to animal nature, and rapidly increases the measure of solid flesh and fat as well as stimulates the currents of healthful life. Those who have thoroughly examined the beef markets of the still cooler, and to some extent, more mountainous country of Montana, will doubtless find even a better illustration of the same principle. The staple, native grass here, as in Montana, is the bunch grass, so famous for its beef creating and fattening properties. It appears to exist in much sparser proportions in this State, however, than in the above mentioned Territory, and the larger stock-men, unless having control of the extensive ranges, are compelled to fall back upon the domesticated grasses, at certain seasons of the year. Where stock is the chief object of attention as in Smith, Mason and some other valleys, alfalfa is the principal tame grass or clover brought into requisition. In the two valleys mentioned, immense ricks of this forage are cut every season, and stacked up in vast quantities upon every principal ranch. Many thousands of acres are devoted to the cultivation of this clover in Mason Valley, alone.

As many as three cuttings are taken from the same soil every season, averaging from 6 to 9 tons per acre. This choice two-green clover, grown and cured in Nevada's cool, pure, bone dry climate, is an article quite different from anything we have known of it heretofore. Horses and cattle are passionately fond of it, and appear to fatten, when living upon it, as rapidly and healthfully as when fed upon the choicest grain.

In Mason Valley we noticed many thousands of cattle had been driven in from California and were being fed and fattened upon this clover-hay for the western market. This was fed out by the ranchmen to the numerous herds at the almost nominal price of three dollars per ton, and yet scarcely a sufficiency of cattle could be obtained in the country to consume the bonanza of sweet clover-hay. Timothy and red-top are esteemed more valuable for working stock, but none of the tame grasses equal the alfalfa as to its fattening properties.

Given climate, water and grasses for horses and horned stock; take away the factor, climate, and we have the lean, lither, long horns and the fiery mounds of south-western Texas, in which climate, when the writer was there ten years ago, the beefy, noble Durham bull refused to live, but sickened and perished, as if resting under the shade of an Upas tree. The Texan knows full well where to make wrighty beef out of his lean kine, and he drives them, by hundreds of thousands, northward among the highland, mountain and cooler districts of Colorado, Wyoming and Montana. And, unlike Pharaoh's lean kine that came up out of the Nile river, in his vision, they do get fat, and in that condition are shipped to Eastern markets with much better chances in their favor for merchantable prices.

Railway mail clerks report that mails are delayed by reason of the heavy freight traffic over the different roads. On the Union and Central Pacific there are freight trains on every siding, and passenger trains have to run between stations on orders. It is not uncommon to find three or four heavy freight trains on a single division going one way and as many going the other, and a similar state of affairs exists probably on every other division.

Sometimes strange difficulties are encountered by the young ladies who are endeavoring to teach Christianity to the Chinese in the Sunday schools of the metropolis. One of the most conspicuous as well as one of the brightest and prettiest of these teachers was attempting in a Brooklyn school recently to inculcate upon the heathen mind of a sleek looking Mongolian the lesson of charity to all. "God loves every one," she said.

"We should love every one!" The Chinaman looked weekly up into her face and quietly asked: "Does God love me?" "Yes," the young lady replied. "Do you love every one?" was the next pointed inquiry. "Yes," she answered. "Do you love me?" "Y-y-yes."

"Will you marry me?" There was no direct answer to this question, but the teacher has since changed her pupil for a Chinaman of less logical turn of mind.

The World's Washington special says: There will be a good deal of talk within the next month about the reorganization of the Cabinet. Cleveland will have to find a new Secretary of the Treasury, and this may lead to other changes. I have heard that it is possible that Whitney will be transferred to the Treasury Department. Whitney has become tired of the Navy Department, and would doubtless find the business of the Treasury Department much more congenial to his tastes. I have heard William L. Scott, of Pennsylvania, also mentioned as a possible selection. His financial views coincide with those of the Administration.

Officially there is no such place as Washington, D. C. A city by that name was once chartered by Congress but the charter was repealed several years ago. The capital of the United States is the District of Columbia, all parts of which are alike governed by Congress through Commissioners. The Postoffice name is Washington, but the Postmaster-General could rename it Vilas if he saw fit.

FOUND.—Some time since the brakemen found a cap on the platform of one of the cars on the west-bound overland and blood was discovered next morning on a bridge above Verdi. Search has since been kept up and yesterday afternoon the body of Joseph Perault was found two hundred feet below Camp 24 bridge by a searching party.

A Business Misunderstanding Leads to a Murder.

EUREKA, (Nev.), April 1.—Word was received here to-day of a homicide that occurred at Hamilton, White Pine county, yesterday afternoon at about 3:30 o'clock, in which two of the oldest and most prominent residents on Treasure Hill figured, namely, James Reilly and County Commissioner S. F. Paul, the former being the victim.

Mr. Reilly was for many years a merchant at Hamilton. Several months ago he became involved in business troubles and certain San Francisco merchants forced a settlement with him by demanding and getting possession and full charge of his store until their accounts against the establishment were squared. Shortly after the San Francisco parties assumed charge of the store Mr. Paul entered into an agreement with Reilly to liquidate the amount, some $8,000, due the parties in possession, with the understanding that store and stock should pass into his possession and control until the amount due him was paid back, Mr. Reilly in the meantime to look after the business.

This arrangement was agreed upon and was being carried out, but it appears the business was not carried on to the satisfaction of Mr. Paul, and differences arose that led to quarrels between the two men. Mr. Paul, it appears, became convinced that Reilly was not acting in good faith with him. Yesterday afternoon at about the hour named, the former, while sitting by a stove in the storeroom, asked Reilly, who was working about some shelves, not to do a certain act, when the latter gave him a very determined and sharp answer, that incensed Paul so that he pulled from his hip pocket a revolver and fired it at Reilly, the ball striking him in the back.

Reilly ran along behind the counter and then out of the front door, and as he did so Paul is said to have fired at him two more shots, neither of which took effect. After gaining the street the wounded man ran about fifty feet, when he fell on his face and expired in less than two minutes, the fatal ball having penetrated his heart. Mr. Paul then surrendered himself to the authorities.

These are the circumstances of the trouble that led to the homicide as nearly as can be learned from the meagre particulars at hand. Both men have been residents of White Pine county since the days of the Treasure Hill excitement, and are married and have large families. The unfortunate affair was the theme of general talk on the streets here to-day, and as a result the sentiment expressed in favor of Commissioner Paul, who is regarded in Eureka as being quiet and inoffensive and always straight-forward in business transactions.

PARADISE HORSE ASSOCIATION.—The Paradise Horse Association will hold their annual exhibition on Monday, April 25th, next. The people of that section of the county have given much attention to horse raising, and the result is the finest horses in Nevada. At those exhibitions, horse raisers are afforded opportunity to see running, trotting, draft and other breeds of horses, and make selections from the best breeds of each class. The demand for good horses was never greater than at present east of the Rocky Mountains, and the business of raising them promises to be remunerative for years to come. The Winnemucca Silver State says the Paradise exhibition should be attended by horse men not only from all parts of Humboldt county, but from the whole State, as it will amply pay them to see the fine specimens of the various breeds raised in the valley.

EXECUTIVE MEETING.—A meeting of the Finance Committee of the Executive Committee of the Nevada Live Stock Association was held at Winnemucca Thursday. It was attended by President Orntcher of Paradise; John Simbold of Golconda, George Russell of Elko, G. W. Crum of Battle Mountain, F. D. Sweetser of Winnemucca and R. W. Lewis, Secretary. The business transacted was of a private character.

The death of General Hancock and the retirement of General Pope have necessitated quite a change in our army organization. The "big four" are now Lieutenant General Sheridan and Major Generals Schofield, Terry and Howard, and in case of a war our military fortunes would depend mostly on these men. Fortunately their record is such as to inspire confidence in their fitness for any emergency. The career of General Sheridan needs no recapitulation. He was one of the most active and successful officers in the late war, his operations in the Shenadoah Valley and elsewhere among the most brilliant achievements on record. Throughout Europe, as well as in his own country, his reputation as a soldier is first-class.

General Schofield, who has been assigned to Governor's Island, has seen less active service than any of the others, and is reputed to be less fond of it, though there is no question as to his bravery. He bore an honorable part in the civil war, and was brevetted for gallantry in the battle of Franklin, Tennessee, a brevet which should have gone to Cox or Opdyck, because Schofield did not earn it in that awful fight. He is, however, a fine tactician, and an able, clear-headed man, but it is doubtful if he could manage the army, in case anything should happen to General Sheridan, as well as Terry could, whom he outranks. In military circles General Terry, although the only one of the four who was not a West Pointer, is generally considered the best all around officer in the army. His record is a brilliant one, and he is as intellectual as he is brave and dashing. Some of his movements, both during and since the late war were real inspirations of genius. In any war in the immediate future Terry would be probably our mainstay among the active Generals.

General Howard also has a very fine record as a soldier, but he is not so universally liked and respected as a man. The causes of his unpopularity are familiar and need not be dwelt upon too fully or too severely. His bravery and patriotism, as displayed on many a bloody field, are unquestionable. He lost his right arm at Fair Oaks early in 1862, but nevertheless fought in the van all through the war with distinguished valor. Both Terry and Howard, and Sheridan as well, received the thanks of Congress, and were repeatedly promoted and brevetted for gallant conduct. With these men at the head of the army, supported by such good soldiers as Crook, Miles, Hazen, Newton, Drum, Stanley and Gibbon, and the veteran Sherman to fall back upon for advice or an occasional gallop across country, the public may feel pretty secure against foreign invasion or domestic insurrection.

TO THE LADIES OF RENO.—BUSINESS CHANCE.—Miss Sadie Sykes tenders her best thanks to the ladies of Reno and vicinity for the patronage and support they have given her for the past three years, and desires to inform them that she has this day disposed of her business to Mrs. Hessel, for whom she solicits a continuance of their kind patronage and support.

Referring to the above Mrs. Hessel respectfully solicits a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to her predecessor, and assures the ladies of Reno and vicinity that her untiring efforts will be put forth to keep the business up to its former high standard. Her knowledge of the business, combined with the services of a first-class assistant, will insure perfect satisfaction at all times.
